Dear Dirk, Andreas and others,

Dirk Bräuer <dirk.braeuer@irfp.de> writes:
>> By the way, now that we are going to support delay infos, what about >> changes in tracks and platforms? Well, maybe an issue for 3.0 and a >> dedicated scheme for operation...
>
> This is a much more general question: To take a train to a different > track in a station can be generalised to redirect a train not only in > a station. At least, the topic of 'actual' train information in > contrary to 'timetable' information is much wider (redirecting > trains, replacing trains, replacing vehicles, wrong formation order, > splitting trains...). We cannot possibly provide alternative 'actual' > attributes for each 'timetable' attribute.
>
> We should provide a solution for 'actual' train information in general > later (earliest in 3.0). This should start with providing a solution > to specify a certain operating day out of the scheduled days as you > already have claimed in another tread. Until that, we should keep > discussions on 'actual' information out of the 'timetable' scheme. In > my opinion this includes the delay information.

Thank you, Dirk, for separating this part of discussion.

I filed a Trac ticket for this issue:

http://trac.assembla.com/railML/ticket/188

Kind regards...
Susanne

--
Susanne Wunsch
Schema Coordinator: railML.common