

---

Subject: Re: Suggestion towards new attributes and sub element for <doors>

Posted by Joerg von Lingen on Fri, 03 Aug 2018 03:28:16 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

see changeset [809] (<https://trac.railml.org/changeset/809/railML>) and ticket #335 (<https://trac.railml.org/ticket/335>)

Dr.-Ing. Jörg von Lingen - Rollingstock scheme coordinator

Torben Brand wrote on 03.07.2018 12:45:

> Dear Dirk and RS community,

>

> I retract my suggestion for @minimumStopTimeDoors. We might > model it as a nor: extention if it is needed after all. I > ask for all other suggestions to be implemented in > railML2.4RS. I think we should not use the element term also > in the attribute term, as this is redundant. For example use

> @openingTime and not @doorOpeningTime under element

> <doors>.

> I thank Dirk for the extensive description for the > composition of the regular stop time. We model similar, but > not quite the same. This as in Norway the departure > procedure starts 20 seconds before the published departure.

> So that in Norway published departure is equal to actual > departure in a situation with no delay. We will come back to > this issue at a later stage.

>

>

>

---