Dear Felix,

again I am little bit confused about the source of data you used.
However, I am going to investigate on this and let you know about my findings.

Best regards
Christian

Am 06.07.2018 um 14:58 schrieb Felix Prüter:
> Dear all,
> validating the Simple Example xml for railML v3.1 raised a > list of errors:
> elements called *Ref (like platformRef) are used but not > allowed by the schema (the corresponding element is written > w/o the Ref suffix) etcsSignal (element of signal) should be > etcs conforming to the schema speedSignal (element of > signal) is not allowed by the schema at all, although > mentioned in the corresponding html documentation in the SVN
> [1] --> clash between xsd and UML model / documentation?
> [1] https://svn.railml.org/railML3/tags/railML-3.1-beta
>
> Kind regards

--
Christian Rahmig - Infrastructure scheme coordinator
railML.org (Registry of Associations: VR 5750)
Phone Coordinator: +49 173 2714509; railML.org: +49 351 47582911
Altplauen 19h; 01187 Dresden; Germany   www.railml.org