Subject: Re: How to interpret application direction for derailers

Dear Torben,

thank you for bringing up this question.

Yes, you are right: the derailer's application direction describes the direction of travel, for which the derail functionality is intended.

The example with the bi-directional derailer is interesting. I think, we should add it on the wiki page about derailers.

What to do with the @derailSide in case of @applicationDirection="both". Your proposal is perfect, I would have defined it the same way. Documentation on wiki page will be adapted...

Best regards
Christian
