Subject: 'trackInfo' deprecated? (was: "stop post" / "platform edge" reference from ocpTT)
Posted by Susanne Wunsch railML on Wed, 28 Nov 2012 21:12:22 GMT

Dear all,

Dirk Bräuer <dirk.braeuer@irfp.de> writes:

>> Now we /could/ say that for the sake of publication, the trackInfo >> attribute is what you have to use. But this being purely textual, we >> would loose reference to the infrastructure model.
>
> I agree: A non-plaintext possibility would be much better. But that > would mean to further expand RailML in this direction in advance - > before we have practical need. Since we cannot do everything at the > same time, I think it's better to postpone this and wait.
>
> Let's remember that the current discussion was only about "trackInfo" > to declare obsolete or not.

I filed a Trac ticket for this issue:

  http://trac.assembla.com/railML/ticket/214

Any comments appreciated.

Kind regards...
Susanne